

One Body, One Ummah

Look around you!
Oh my dear Muslim brothers and sisters
Look at what it has come to!
For all the chaos that lingers

We see them cry
We see them suffer
And don't you ever worry why?
For Allah we patiently endure

Walk with me, brothers and sisters!
For all your suffering is my suffering, too
Stand with me, brothers and sisters!
For all your tears, are my tears, too

One Body, One Ummah

We are different and same

We were born differently
Race, accent, and skin color might be different
We might be differ in the view
But, does difference build the gap?

Islam brings us to the word of "ummah"
We then are same
The same in what we follow
The same in what we worship
The same in what is targeted: Jannah
The sameness under the words of Allah
The sameness because of Allah This sameness that we believe to bring us to re-meeting on the day of judgment

The meeting to testify to the wound and victory that we felt
The meeting to witness that we are inseparable even the disease brutally attacked
We attack back by the 'real weapon' to the enemy

We might live differently but our prophet brings us to the "same" body, same feeling, and same tauhid
Just by dua to the One and Only, we win as one ummah
